

LET US HELP START THE HEALING

The loss of a loved one can be finalized by letting the ashes fall through your fingers into the boundless eternity of the sea.

SEA SCATTERING

Burial at sea, and ashes scattering at sea, have been both a tradition and now waves of the future.

Traditionally sailors and seafarers performed burial at sea because of necessity (they were out to sea at the time) or because of nostalgia or a yearning to be returned to the place where they spent much of their lives. More and more people are now having their ashes scattered at sea.

There are several reasons:

1. The finality of scattering brings closure to grieving.
2. The natural peacefulness and serenity associated with the ocean.
3. Ashes scattering is environmentally non-intrusive.

Ashes Scattering is Ecological

THE COAST OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

The coast of California is truly a beautiful place. The dolphins play in the surf, the gulls swoop and call, and the sun sets with unsurpassed opulence of orange blue and white.

Our ceremonies are usually performed about one mile off the coast of San Diego.

We can arrange for the viewing from shore from either the Ocean Beach pier, Crystal Pier or the Cabrillo Monument on Point Loma.

We can also take you anywhere you want to go, from the border, to Long Beach in L.A., to 25 miles straight out in the ocean.
